THE BELLWEATHER BULLETIN

Issue Autumn

Meet the trustees: Silas Moreau

Silas Moreau has sat on the museum's board for eleven years. Staff know he is coming long before they see him: the cherry tobacco of his pipe, which he is never without, arrives first, followed by the grey overcoat he wears to every board meeting.

This autumn Mr. Moreau personally oversaw the annual cleaning of the Halloran Pearl, on 27 October. "I wanted our treasure shining for the holidays," he told the Bulletin.

He is also the driving force behind the new east wing, which opens in the spring.

Also in this issue

The winter gala, the new cafe menu, and a reminder that the trustees' entrance on Cinder Lane is for trustees only.